SNYDERSVILLE — A 20-year-old Bethlehem youth was killed and six other persons injured, one critically, in a violent three-vehicle accident on Rte. 33 Sunday night.

Joseph F. Boutron, 20, 120 E. Et-twein St., was pronounced dead at the scene by Monroe County Coroner Daniel Warner.

The auto fatality was the third on Rte. 33 this year and the second in less than two weeks.

A passenger in the Boutron car, Herman E. Posada, 22, 1918 Allenwood Dr., Bethlehem, was in serious condition early today at St. Luke's Hospital in Bethlehem.

Trooper Michael Hartley, investigating officer, of the state police at Stroudsburg, described the following sequence of events:

Boutron was driving north on Rte. 33 at a high rate of speed near the Rte. 209 cutoff for Lehigh when he lost control on a curve.

His car crossed over the grass median into the southbound lanes striking a 1970 Imperial sedan operated by H. David Randall, 75, 3203 Center St., Bethlehem, who was traveling south on Rte. 33.

The Boutron car, a 1966 Chevrolet Corvette, continued in the southbound lanes hitting a 1968 Ford pickup truck head-on.

Hartley said the truck was operated by Robert Warner Malzahn, 42, North Maimi, Fla., and was hauling a home-made car trailer and a stock car.

The trooper said Boutron's car disintegrated upon impact with bits and pieces of it flying across the highway. Police at first were only able to identify the make of the car by its hubcaps.

One observer called the accident scene "worse than what occurs at Indianapolis."

Blue Ridge Hook and Ladder firemen from Saylorsburg were called immediately to help attend to the injured, some of whom were trapped in the vehicles.

Hartley said Eugene Wilson, 39, 200 Ave. M., Matamoras, a passenger in the pickup truck, was trapped for about 45 minutes until firemen were able to free him.

Fire Chief George Kitchen said 18 men and two trucks from the rescue squad washed down the highway which was covered with fuel and oil.

All of the injured were taken to the General Hospital of Monroe County by two West End Ambulances and a state police patrol car.

Wilson was in fair condition in the hospital's Intensive Care Unit with possible internal injuries, and another passenger in the truck, the driver's wife, Mrs. Bernice Malzahn, 42, was in satisfactory condition with a forehead laceration and an injured arm. Her husband was treated and released.

Randall and his wife, Meta B. Randall, 74, were both treated and released.

Hartley said five troopers from the Stroudsburg and Fern Ridge barracks attempted to clear the highway.

He noted the southbound lane of Rte. 33 was closed for more than an hour with traffic being rerouted over the median into the north bound lane. Traffic was reportedly backed up for more than three miles.

Nixon, Brezhnev prepare for talks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — At quiet retreats more than 1,000 miles apart, Leonid I. Brezhnev and President Nixon conferred Sunday with top aides on the eve of summit talks covering the breadth of Soviet-American relations from trade to disarmament.

Brezhnev, general secretary of the Soviet Communist party, remained at Camp David, the presidential hideaway in northern Maryland, meeting with Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko and other high officials in final preparation for today's opening session with Nixon at the White House.

The President, returning to Washington in the evening, wound up a weekend of consultations at his compound in Key Biscayne, Fla., by talking with national security adviser Henry A. Kissinger and then dispatching him in late afternoon to Camp David to personally welcome Brezhnev and finalize details of his U.S. visit.

Soviet and American officials provided only the barest details of each leader's activities.

Both sides appeared to expect the talks to produce no spectacular accords on the scale of those reached at the Moscow summit in May, 1972, but to yield several lesser agreements and to serve generally as a step forward in mutual relations.

After Brezhnev arrived in Washington Saturday and helicoptered to Camp David, Nixon called him by telephone to welcome him on his first visit to the United States.

The tone of the warm official greeting Brezhnev got at the airport and from Nixon was in sharp contrast to a series of mass demonstrations which began here Sunday and were expected to continue intermittently throughout his nine-day stay.

At the U.S. Capitol, about 8,000 persons gathered for a rally organized by the National Conference on Soviet Jewry to demand free emigration privileges for all Soviet Jews before forming a "Freedom March" to the Ellipse, a grassy park south of the White House.

Brezhnev, secluded at the mountaintop retreat, was presumably informed about the demonstrations planned during his visit. One Russian journalist, traveling with him, quipped: "There are demonstrations against Brezhnev, when will there be a 'Welcome Brezhnev demonstration?'"

Meanwhile, the summit talks, scheduled to run from today through Saturday in Washington, Camp David and San Clemente, came under fire again from Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., who charged that the Soviet leader was bound to take advantage of the President because of the Watergate scandal.

Jackson, in a television interview (Face the Nation — CBS), said he did not believe Brezhnev's assertion Thursday in a three-hour meeting with American reporters in Moscow that it would be "indecent" of him to bring up Watergate.

"I don't believe him," Jackson said. "He doesn't have to bring up Watergate — my God — Watergate is everywhere!"

"Look, he's (Brezhnev) got a terribly competent ambassador here named Mr. Dolrynin. He is one of their better reporters. He knows every detail about it. I'm more suspicious now, after his press conference in Moscow than I was before."

Jackson restated his criticism of Soviet restrictions on emigration of Jews involved in security-sensitive jobs, the U.S. grain sales to the Soviet Union, and the first Soviet-American strategic arms limitation agreement which Nixon and Brezhnev completed at their summit conference last year.

Navy races against time to save four men in sub

KEY WEST, Fla. (UPI) —

The first attempt to rescue four men trapped in a tiny research submarine 360 feet deep in the Atlantic failed Sunday night when divers found the sub trapped in the tangled wreckage of a scuttled destroyer.

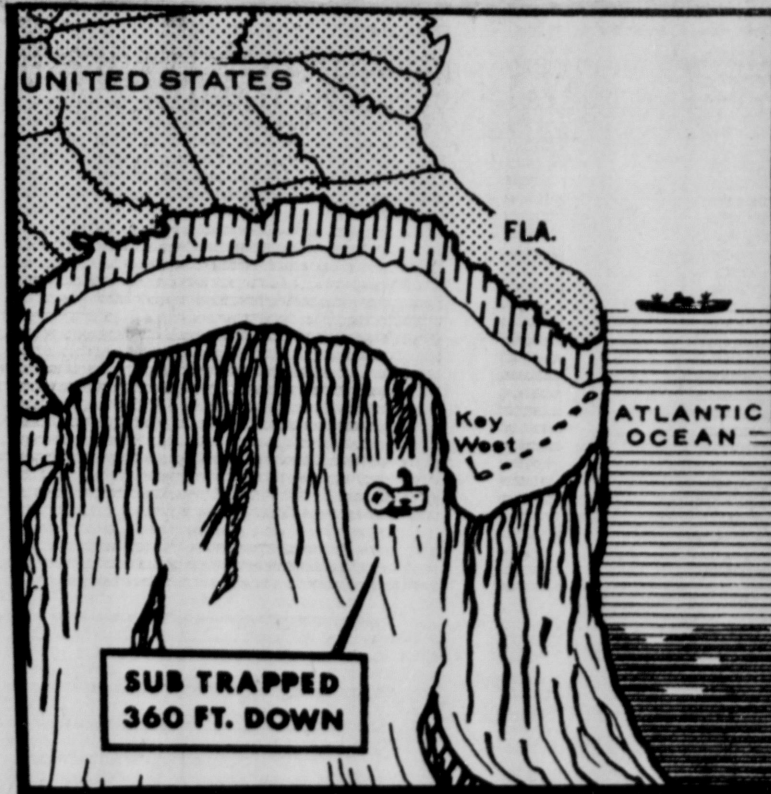

Hopes for a rescue switched to a special diving chamber being brought to the site 10 miles off the Florida Keys. The four crewmen had only enough oxygen to last until noon today, experts feared.

Lt. Cmdr William Smith, spokesman for the rescue operation, said the Navy divers in helmets and pressure suits found the Johnson-Sea-Link sub was actually wedged into the wreckage, not merely trapped by a cable as previously believed.

He said the two divers from the submarine rescue ship Tringa descended to 300 feet before getting a clear view of the situation. The submarine, he said, was 60 feet further down and they could not descend further without running grave danger of entangling their life lines.

He said the divers returned to the surface and the rescue operation was held up pending the arrival of a mobile diving chamber flown in from San Diego. The chamber, which carries four "free divers," was due on the scene at about 2:30 a.m. EDT.

The submarine was caught in the wreckage of the destroyer Fred T. Berry, scuttled by the Navy in May 1972. The submarine was studying fish around the hulk when it was trapped.

First reports indicated there was enough oxygen aboard the little craft to keep the four men aboard alive until nearly noon Tuesday. But late Sunday its designer, Edwin A. Link—whose son was one of the four crewmen—said, "The revised estimate of life support resources shows oxygen only sufficient to support life no later than noon tomorrow."

Officials with the Smithsonian Institution, which owns the submarine, and Harbor Branch Foundation Laboratory at Fort Pierce, which was taking part in the oceanographic research with the Smithsonian, were optimistic that the submarine, would be freed and on the surface before dawn.

Dr. George M. Griffin, a member of another crew which was to have taken over the submarine Monday, said the crew aboard consisted of the pilot, Jack Menzies; an ichthyologist, Dr. Robert Meek, and two divers, Clayton Link, son of the designer-builder, and Al Stover.

Griffin said the sub is constructed in two parts, and two of the crew are in the forward compartment, a glass bubble which affords nearly 360-degree vision and from which the boat is controlled, and the aft section, which contains a tube through which scuba divers may come and go.

He said the crew was in steady radio contact with the surface, although there was no report to newsmen directly from the rescue scene.

Truce violations decrease

SAIGON — Fighting continued in Vietnam, but at a sharply lower pace. Members of the international peacekeeping team watched exchanges of mortar fire from their compound at Vi Thanh. "You know," said Capt. Pat Dillon of Victoria, B. C., "son of ceasefire isn't working worth a damn." But officially only six truce violations were reported between 6 a.m. and noon, the lowest total since May 30. "It is difficult to say if this represents a trend," the South Vietnamese military command said.

Resignation best way out

WASHINGTON — Resignation would be the "cheapest, easiest and best" way out for President Nixon if it is proved he was involved in the Watergate scandal, Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., said Sunday. "I don't think he should resign, nor do I think he should be impeached, unless it is proved that he lied..." Goldwater said. "If it ever gets down to the fact that he has been involved — and I don't think he was — then I think resignation would be the cheapest, easiest and best way to do it. Get Agnew in and get going."

Storm routs hundreds

TOLEDO — More than a thousand persons fled from their homes on southern Lake Erie Sunday when winds up to 50 miles per hour pushed churning water over dikes. Authorities said 400 persons were evacuated from Sand Beach, Ohio, and another 400 persons left their homes near Toledo, Ohio. In Monroe County, Mich., more than 250 evacuated. "We had no advance warning of any kind until one of our patrol cars called in to say the lake was coming in on us," Michael Winters, a Monroe County, Mich., sheriff's office spokesman, said. "By the time she had crested, we had three inches more water than we had in those bad floods last November."

'Shocking' Father's Day

ATLANTA — Air Force Capt. James Phillips celebrated Father's Day Sunday as the proud but "shocked" father of quadruplets. His 26-year-old wife, Sybil, was in labor for three hours Saturday afternoon. The quadruplets — three girls and a boy — were born within seven minutes of each other. Because of their small size, the babies were listed in guarded condition at Cobb General Hospital Sunday but were doing well. The largest baby was three pounds, 11 ounces, and the smallest, two pounds, six ounces.

Miss Pennsylvania crowned

HERSHEY — Miss Lancaster County, Tina Louise Thomas, was crowned Miss Pennsylvania for 1973 Saturday night. The five-foot-six, 120-pound beauty will represent the state at the Miss America Pageant in Atlantic City, N. J., in September. Last year Pennsylvania's Linda Kay, was one of the 10 finalists in the Miss America contest. First runner up was Miss Central Pennsylvania Lynn Ann Brown, Huntington. She was followed by Miss Bucks County, Karen Lynn Kuhn, Levittown; Miss Greater Philadelphia, Roxie Ann Morgan; and Miss Montgomery County Carolyn Hall, Philadelphia. Tina Louise, who won the swimsuit competition Friday, will enter Millersville State College this fall to study music.

Dean 'assumed' President knew of bugging cover-up to the President," one source said.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ex-White House Counsel John W. Dean has told Senate investigators he "assumed" President Nixon was aware of the Watergate cover-up within weeks of the bugging because he reported on it regularly to Nixon's two closest advisers, it was learned Sunday.

But, according to sources close to the Senate probe, Dean told the investigators that he himself did not discuss aspects of the cover-up personally with the President until last March.

The sources said Dean, in a five-hour interview under oath Saturday with the staff of the Senate Watergate Committee, described how he reported on efforts to hush up the scandal to H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman at their request beginning a few weeks after the bugging arrests at the Democratic National Committee exactly one year ago.

"He assumed that Haldeman and Ehrlichman were reporting

Haldeman was White House chief of staff and Ehrlichman was Nixon's chief domestic affairs adviser. Both resigned April 30, the same day Dean was fired, in a major post-Watergate shakeup of Nixon's staff. Both also have denied any involvement in the affair.

Skylab astronauts set endurance record

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Skylab astronauts, told by President Nixon they proved "man still matters" in space, set a world space endurance record of nearly 24 days early today.

Charles "Pete" Conrad, Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz, who also received Father's Day greetings from their families Sunday, passed the previous spaceflight record at 3:22 a. m. EDT.

The mark of 23 days, 18 hours, and 22 minutes was set by three Soviet Soyuz 11 cosmonauts who died in a depressurization accident as they prepared to return to earth two years ago.

The Skylab 1 crewmen are scheduled to undock from the space station and fly back to earth Friday in their Apollo command ship after staying in orbit 28 days. They successfully tested one set of the Apollo's earth-return retrorockets Sunday by firing a nine-second burst to adjust the lab's orbit so it will be right for the next crew next month.

The three astronauts are to spend Wednesday and Thursday getting their giant space home ready for five weeks of unmanned flight before it is visited by Skylab 2 astronauts.

Dime stamp for letter on horizon?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The price of a first-class postage stamp probably will rise to 10 cents next January, Postmaster General Elmer T. Klassen said Sunday.

Klassen said the Postal Service "in all likelihood" will ask the Postal Rate Commission to up the price of the present 8-cent stamp at the beginning of 1974.

"I think we'll recommend a 10-cent stamp," he said.

Klassen said the increase would raise an additional $1 billion, most of it going to cover "very substantial wage increases" granted to postal employees.

Cities in U. S. 'orphaned' by Nixon, mayor charges

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The nation's cities have become an "orphan" under the Nixon administration, Mayor Joseph Alioto, host mayor for the 41st annual Conference of Mayors said Sunday.

The remark drew quick rebuttal from James T. Lynn, secretary of Housing and Urban Development, (HUD). Lynn, who is attending the conference as a representative of the administration, told newsmen the cities are "not orphans at all, but vital elements in domestic planning."

"We have all the access we need to the President," he said. HUD exists for that purpose, Lynn added.

Alioto was one of six mayors to appear on the NBC-TV program "Meet The Press," held in connection with the mayors' conference.

In contrast to the Johnson administration, "We have never known who was in charge in the cities for Nixon," he said on the national broadcast.

Congressmen lead protest against treatment of Jews

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Led by sympathetic congressmen, about 8,000 people rallied Sunday at the U.S. Capitol to protest Soviet treatment of Jews, timing their demonstration to coincide with final preparations for the Nixon-Brezhnev summit talks.

Organizers of the rally said it was designed to tell both President Nixon and Leonid I. Brezhnev, general secretary of the Soviet Communist party, that the Kremlin must allow all Soviet Jews to emigrate freely if the United States is to grant the Russians preferential trade status.

Neither Brezhnev nor the President were in Washington at the time. Nixon was working at his compound in Key Biscayne, Fla., and Brezhnev spent the day at Camp David, Md., the presidential retreat about 75 miles from Washington.

The demonstration, followed by a march to the Ellipse south of the White House, began with a band playing Hebrew folk songs.

Members of the militant Jewish Defense League (JDL) occasionally interrupted the speeches with chanting and vowed "to do something" later at the Soviet Embassy, a few blocks north of the White House and sealed off by police for security reasons.

One of the JDL banners pictured a rifle and said: "Justice for Brezhnev." Other placards said "Let Jews leave as Jews," "Let Jews live as Jews," "Free Soviet Jewry" and "Let My People Go."

Reps. Philip Burton, D-Calif., and Robert Drinan, D-Mass., a Roman Catholic priest, were honored guests at the podium and statements were read from Sens. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., and Richard Schweiker, R-Pa.

Germans jail Turner

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI) — Millionaire businessman Glenn W. Turner exchanged a 5-by-10-foot jail cell for modern prison quarters with piped-in radio Sunday in preparation for his extradition hearing Monday.

A federal court was scheduled to hear arguments Monday on a British warrant asking that Turner, 38, be extradited to England to face charges of business malpractice.

Police detained Turner as he passed through Frankfurt airport Friday, acting on the British warrant and a notice from the International police (Interpol). A judge placed him under arrest without bail Saturday pending the hearing.

Turner, once a South Carolina sharecropper, heads a network of sales enterprises and "Dare To Be Great" confidence building programs that are under legal attack in more than 40 states.

A police spokesman said Turner was moved Sunday from his tiny cell in police headquarters to brick-walled Preungesheim prison in the suburbs. Cells there are also small, but they are bright and neat and equipped with earphones that allow the prisoners to hear radio programs.

A U.S. consulate spokesman said Turner had not asked to see a consular officer.

Legislators have 13 days to work out state budget

HARRISBURG (UPI) — With 13 days left to the end of the fiscal year, the General Assembly returns today to name a Conference Committee to work out a state budget.

House Republicans, angered by the failure of Senate Democrats to name their committee members last week, plan to introduce $180 million in stop-gap appropriations.

Rep. H. Jack Seltzer, R-Lebanon, Appropriations Committee Chairman, said he would sponsor two bills to keep the state running in the event the budget is not signed by Gov. Milton Shapp before July 1.

The House has already named Seltzer, Rep. Robert Butera R-Montgomery and Rep. Herbert Fineman, D-Philadelphia as its committee members.

But the Senate quit early last week. Even though the Democrats know who they will appoint, they quit Tuesday before the committee issue could be placed on the calendar.

Senate Republicans have not released their conferee's name, but the Democrats will be represented by Henry J. Cianfrani, power Appropriations Committee chairman from Philadelphia, and Thomas Lamb, Allegheny County majority floor leader.

The committee will be working with two versions of a spending package. House Republicans have passed a $3.5 billion budget. Senate Democrats have passed a $3.83 billion plan.

Meir to seek reelection

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Prime Minister Golda Meir told her governing Labor party Sunday she was reluctant but willing to run for re-election to another four-year term.

Her decision, announced in a letter sent to the party secretariat, ended months of speculation that had been drawn out by contradictory statements by the 75-year-old prime minister.

"You have been aware of my struggle in agreeing to be a candidate for another term," Mrs. Meir wrote. "I have made my reasons known to my fellow party members amid an effort to persuade them to free me from presenting my candidacy."

"But I have not succeeded. Therefore, if the party so decides, I will not remove my candidacy."

Recent public opinion polls showed Mrs. Meir enjoying the support of more than 74 per cent of the adult Israeli public in any bid for re-election.

Poll shows Nixon 'involved'

PRINCETON, N.J. (UPI) — Two out of every three Americans in the Gallup poll's latest survey believe that President Nixon was involved, at least to some degree, in the Watergate affair.

About one-third of those polled said they believed Nixon found out about the "bugging" after it occurred, but tried to cover it up.

At the same time, about half of all persons dismiss the Watergate affair as "just politics—the kind of thing that both parties engage in," although a sharply increased number believe it is a "very serious matter" revealing corruption in the Nixon administration.

A series of questions was asked in early June to determine public awareness of the Watergate affair, views on Nixon's degree of involvement and whether or not the public regards Watergate as revealing corruption in the Nixon administration.

The results show that 67 per cent of persons believe that Nixon was involved in Watergate, either in planning or the cover-up.

House to move on pesticides' provision

By JOHN L. MOORE

Harrisburg News Service

HARRISBURG — The stage may be set for a clash between farm interests and ecologists this week if the House moves on a major new pesticides bill.

The bill, a revision of a 1956 law its sponsor calls "weak and basically ineffective," keeps control over pesticides in the state Agriculture Department, something ecologists oppose since they see pesticides as more of an environmental problem and an area the Environmental Department should regulate.

But Rep. Roy W. Wilt, a Mercer Republican who headed a special Agriculture subcommittee which worked on the bill, sees it as "a piece of legislation that will allow the farmer to produce and yet provides regulations that will protect the environment."

Dr. Maurice Goodard, the Environmental secretary, feels his department — not agriculture — should regulate pesticides. "This is the logical place for it to come," Goddard says, arguing his department was created in order to "put the environmental issues all in one place."

The House bill is only one of two pieces of pesticide legislation. The other, a Senate bill Goddard backs, would give the Environmental Department jurisdiction.

Wilt and other agriculture committee members argue that it makes little sense to strip pesticide control from the Department of Agriculture only to create a new pesticide agency in the Department of Environmental Resources.

"Our contention is DER never dealt with pesticides," Wilt says. "Agriculture always has and its people are better informed."

Rep. Reno H. Thomas, the Snyder County lawmaker who is vice chairman of the House Agriculture Committee agrees. "Why do we throw one away and create an entirely new one at additional multiple costs?" Thomas asks.

Because the House bill is far more restrictive than the 1956 law, whichever department gets the task will have more pesticide regulations to enforce. But keeping pesticides in the Agriculture Department will cost "only about half" ($270,000) what it will cost DER to put an entirely new agency together (about $500,000), Thomas says.

Whatever the outcome, the controversy is a quiet one, and neither the controversy nor the substance of the House bill have grabbed many headlines since the bill was introduced in March.

And the Senate bill has gathered less steam at this point. Sources say it is held up in the Senate Environmental Committee where it has not yet been considered.

Wilt says there is a good chance the House will vote on its bill this week, but adds voting may be postponed if any important amendments are offered.

He and Thomas say the bill is important because the federal government is requiring tighter pesticide controls than Pennsylvania presently. The U.S. is giving states the chance to adopt their own pesticide regulations providing they are "equal to or more stringent than" federal controls, Thomas says, and adds that if the state fails to meet federal requirements, the U.S. will step in and take over.

Mass exodus causes locals to buzz

BRODHEADSVILLE — A massive exodus of thousands of strange looking New Jerseyites to the West End of Monroe County has caused quite a stir among locals.

Taxpayers at three township meetings in the last two weeks have commented vividly on the new visitors, who assuredly, won't cause any housing shortage with their relocation.

The newcomers are, in fact, strange looking, tame flies!

Old timers in the West End claim they have never seen anything like the new variety that doesn't "bite like a West End fly, doesn't land like a West End fly, and even lets you pick it up!"

Assistant District Forester Paul Drury confirmed this week the strange looking insects — they look like ordinary black horseflies to the novice — are actually biological controls for the gypsy moth released by the New Jersey Department of Agriculture some time ago.

The DER spokesman said the West End flies were of the same type reported earlier in the northern part of the county.

When asked how New Jersey felt since all its flies decided to leave the state, Drury jokingly said that since they gave us the gypsy moth in the first place, now we might be even.

The flies, one of the controls under study by Pennsylvania, according to the DER, lay an egg on the gypsy moth larva.

A maggot then emerges which bores into the caterpillar.

Drury said that a DER expert flew in from Harrisburg and officially identified the flies last week. Although it is not known how the insects spread, it is suspected that they came to Pennsylvania because they are following the gypsy moth.

Although admitting it should help some, Drury said he didn't know what kind of effect the flies would have in reducing the moths this year.

West End wanderings

By MAUREEN RUFÉ
Pocono Record Reporter

BRODHEADSVILLE — If we were all horses, boy, could we save a lot of money on beds!

If you can't make the connection between those two distant subjects, you probably, like me, never stopped to think about the fact that horses sleep while standing up.

In fact, as early as 1943 a university professor in Missouri conducted tests on this natural phenomenon and discovered that horses don't rest well at all on their sides.

When they are standing, horses have a unique type of muscle that locks and allows the horse to sleep like it was resting on stilts. Wouldn't it be great if people could do the same thing? Just lock your legs wherever you are and take a quick snooze.

Professor C.F. Winchester discovered when the standing horse becomes unconscious, there is no direct control over the muscles essential to maintain an erect posture.

The muscles of the horse's legs, back, and chest are actually controlled by a reflex action of the spinal cord when the horse is sleeping.

After talking to several horse owners in the West End I discovered that horses sometimes go for months without ever lying down and only one person ever reported a horse falling down when it was asleep.

The handlers however, indicated the animals, if left to themselves, will sleep eight to ten hours a day.

One farmer claims that he even remembers a horse that stayed standing after it was dead! Needless to say, I was unable to confirm that report.

Discharge permit requested

BANGOR — Blue Ridge-Winkler Textiles, a division of Lehigh Valley Industries, Inc. will apply for a federal permit today to discharge treated water into Martins Creek.

The operating facility and main physical plant as well as the offices are located in Bangor. The company operates additional facilities in three other states.

The Bangor facility is situated near Martins Creek and a treated discharge is presently released into that creek.

The federal government determined that Martins Creek is a public waterway conferring upon it the jurisdiction to control any wastes, treated or untreated, that may be discharged.

The Federal Water Pollution Control Act Amendments of 1972 require the implementation, by July 2, 1977, of the "best practicable control technology currently available" for all private industries having discharge points on navigable waters.

Blue Ridge-Winkler has applied for a permit to discharge treated water complying with federal effluent limitations previously determined to be sufficient to protect aquatic life in the stream.

The Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources (DER) and Environmental Protection Agency, Region III, will hold the public hearing at East Stroudsburg State College to determine whether the proposed permit limitations adequately protect water quality in Martins Creek.

Addition to I-84 would save lives

The state has been at work on Route 209 this spring — but hold the heavy cheers. What the winding river road needs is relocation or at least widening. What its getting is a new surface. Plus, temporarily at least, a shoulder drop of several inches to complicate attempts to steer by a driver forced off the road by an approaching rig.

Most seem to agree that two things can save life, limbs and crippling heart attacks on 209. They're (1) relocation of the highway to the hills northwest of what must someday be the Delaware Water Gap Recreation Area and (2) diversion of the commercial traffic by completing Interstate 84 as the route to New England from central Pennsylvania.

Neither is going to come in time to save the next four or five lives that will be lost on 209 but almost surely the completion of 84 offers the quickest hope. And even if the "completion" is years away, relief need not be that far.

Bids are about to be let on extension of 84 to Greentown and connection with little 191. This will take a bit of the pressure off 209 and off 402 which the wide loads are being forced to use through the summer.

Now if the state could produce the extra money to extend 84 a few more miles to below Hamlin, we might be able to seriously reduce those loss-of-life statistics that the present links to 84 will surely cause.

It would be reasonable for most trucks seeking 84 to go east, or leaving 84 to go west to reach the exit near Hamlin which is only minutes from Interstate 81.

We don't know whose property or whose lives will be saved by completing additional parts of 84 ahead of schedule, but the money for the highway will have to be spent someday. The saving in people and property are a bonus offered for early delivery.

'Now for my next trick - - '

Blood to save lives

Some of us don't have to wait beyond today to do something personal about possibly saving a life. The chance comes with the monthly visit of the Bloodmobile.

This trip into Monroe County is in Canadensis at the Methodist Church. The Gray Ladies and nurses will be happy to meet any of us for this fast, easy and character-building contribution to another. Hours are 12:45 to 5:45.

Tragedy via canoes

And then there are the daredevils who don't swim well but have heard that canoes float. They see no risk in renting a canoe in southern New York State and sporting it down the Delaware.

Goodness knows how many capsize to ruin a happy day for novice paddlers but four people have been drowned to ruin their lives and cause consternation for hundreds of others including volunteer searchers.

Canoeing in a swift stream is no more for the inexperienced than hunting in a doeskin jacket on the first day of the deer season.

Light Side

Late dinner

By GENE BROWN
Ottawa News Service

The other night this writer protested to his co-habitant Mrs. Malaprop the lateness of dinner which had been in the oven for an extraordinary long time.

Annoyed at my impatience she hastily opened the oven door, took a look — at a charred roast. To alleviate my annoyance at postponing the dinner for another hour, while she found something else, she remarked: "Oh well Rome wasn't burnt in a day."

Point of view

An elderly husband was having his first birthday after having retired from his executive position with a large company, and his wife was in a men's store looking for a suitable gift.

"This," said the salesman, holding up a royal blue silk smoking jacket, "is just the thing for the man-about-town."

"I know," the wife agreed, "but what do you have for a louse-around-the-house?"

In color too!

Dave Rasmussen writes that he has a friend who was nervous about an impending operation.

"There's no reason to be nervous," his nurse reassured him. "The surgeon has seen an operation just like yours on TV."

Standards have declined

Can colleges survive?

By RUSSELL KIRK

Academic standards in the American college have declined so swiftly and stealthily in recent years that some well-informed scholars begin to wonder whether American higher education can survive. One of those so alarmed is Professor O. Marc Tangner, of California State College at Dominguez Hills.

Addressing the annual convention of University Professors for Academic Order, meeting at Gainesville recently, Dr. Tangner said that we have been led into immense difficulties by certain illusions: "Fundamental among these are the notions that everyone is endowed with equal potential, that man is infinitely malleable, and that government—through wise counsel and social engineering—can remove all deficiency from the condition of man."

Tangner emphasized three consequences of these ideological errors. The first is campus activism — that is, violent ideological politics among students, subsidized by government programs which recruit, often, the very young people least likely to succeed in the academy and most liable to be misled by campus demagogues.

The second consequence is the engaging of unqualified people as members of college and university staffs—under the pressure of the federal government's "Affirmative Action" program. Ethnic and sexual quotas, rather than scholarly talents, become the means for forming faculties.

The third consequence is the open curriculum, which abolishes any hierarchy of studies, any ordering and integration of knowledge. To attract large numbers of students (regardless of their intelligence or degree of preparation) and to gratify campus militants, "experimental" and sham courses supplant real intellectual disciplines.

To Dr. Tangner's lamentations, I add several of my own, in a little booklet entitled "Reforming the American College: Relevance to the Human Condition." This pamphlet of mine is distributed by the Movement for Quality Education, an activity of Young Americans for Freedom. Free copies may be obtained by writing either to Young Americans for Freedom (1221 Massachusetts Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C.) or to me in care of this newspaper.

But I do not despair of reform—not yet. In my pamphlet, I suggest a number of palliatives and partial remedies.

As I write in my analysis, "A spreading disillusion with collegiate results may keep enrollments static, or even produce a general and enduring reduction of numbers—and so offer some relief from the blunders of Holy Quantity."

I recommend the "external degree," by which students can work for a degree, over some years, without having to attend classes on a campus. I suggest that "free colleges," informal and operated at low cost, may have some future. I hope for the improvement of community colleges, on a more humane scale than the mass campus of Behemoth U.

'Honors college'

And especially I am an advocate of the "honors college" that could be established within every big university or overgrown "college." If I may be permitted to quote again from my own pamphlet, "To such an honors college should be admitted only the 10 per cent, or 5 per cent or 1 per cent, of the student body that seem genuinely interested in virtue and wisdom, and reasonably competent to pursue such studies. A degree awarded by such an honors college would have significance, and the better students would be liberated from their present servitude to the mediocrity and the frivolity of Behemoth U."

I believe that it would be well to establish separate colleges for the arts and for the sciences. Such colleges might be at once residential and nonresidential: that is, some students could reside in the college, and others in private lodgings. At these honors colleges, the term of study would extend over three years only, at the end of which the bachelor's degree would be conferred; for an additional year of more specialized study, an "honors" degree of B.A. or M.A. might be granted, after the pattern of the Scottish universities.

In an arts college, the primary discipline should be the literary and the philosophical. Emphasis would be placed upon the philosophical and ethical (ital) meaning (ital) of literature. Philosophy would include metaphysics, ethics, politics, and perhaps aesthetics, with considerable attention to physical and mathematical foundations of the philosophical intellect.

No vocational instruction would be offered in such colleges: the arts college would teach politics, but not political administration; the science college would teach the principles of mechanics, but not technical engineering. (It must be understood that I am writing about undergraduate colleges, not about universities with professional schools.)

"Such an honors college as I have outlined," I conclude in my pamphlet, "would be freer far than the most extravagant form of the 'elective' system—because the whole program would be relevant to the students' central interests, and none of them would be there under compulsion. Within the honors program, a far-ranging diversity of personal specialization would be possible, under the supervision of competent senior scholars. Individual talents would be given scope and encouragement; but those talents would be developed within the invaluable framework of a genuine ordering and integrating of knowledge."

My plan, I contend, is genuinely realistic, not utopian. If a half-dozen institutions should try it, we might succeed in leavening that lump of "higher" education which Dr. Tangner so mordantly and truthfully describes.

Colson's confession

WASHINGTON — The White House financed a trip to New England by Waterbugger E. Howard Hunt to investigate Sen. Edward Kennedy's role in the Chappaquiddick tragedy, according to Charles Colson, who ordered the mission.

The former White House aide confessed his part in the snooping operation during a secret deposition taken May 28 by lawyers for the Democratic National Committee.

Colson told under oath how Hunt came to him in July 1971, with a tip that a policeman, identified only as "Demot," had confidential information on the case.

Because Kennedy was a potential presidential contender, the White House was eager to learn more about the 1969 drowning of Mary Jo Kopechne during a drive with Kennedy.

Rehash

Colson instructed Hunt to interview the policeman whose information, said Colson, proved to be a rehash of published material. The White House paid Hunt's air fare either to Massachusetts or Rhode Island for the interview, Colson recalled.

The tough, glib Colson also admitted he had dispatched Hunt to Denver to question Dita Beard about her famous memo linking an ITT financial commitment to the Republicans with an advantageous antitrust settlement. Hunt wore a preposterous, ill-fitting red wig on this secret mission.

Colson conceded that he had worked, too, on an advertisement supporting President Nixon's decision to bomb and mine Haiphong harbor. The ad was signed by private citizens but paid out of campaign funds.

'Attack group'

In his deposition, Colson also spoke fully for the first time of his mysterious "Attack Group," which worked out of the White House in 1972. Its job, he said, was to coordinate policy for surrogate candidates who were carrying the political attack to the Democrats.

Colson vigorously denied he had advance knowledge of the Watergate break-in. The most he did, he said, was phone campaign deputy Jeb Magruder to arrange for the Watergate ringleaders, Howard Hunt and Gordon Liddy, to explain their intelligence plans. But Colson insisted he did this at Hunt's request and never learned the actual plans.

On balance, Colson denied more than he admitted. He flatly contradicted press reports that he had recruited men to pose as homosexuals in the McGovern campaign. He also denied knowing Hunt had once forged documents to show the late President John F. Kennedy had conspired to assassinate the late South Vietnamese President Ngo Dinh Diem.

Democrat Deal: The Watergate spotlight has caught in its sweep many a moneybag who contributed generously to President Nixon's campaign and received a government favor in return. But there were Democrats, too, who engaged in this sort of exchange.

A defaced "m" in a typed bill introduced by Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala., for instance, led us to the typewriter of John Horne, a former Sparkman aide who is now a director of the billion-dollar Continental Investment Corp.

We established that Horne had written the measure and Sparkman had rushed it through his Senate Banking Committee without bothering to have it retyped. The bill would allow Continental's brokerage company to continue collecting fat brokerage fees until 1975 from a mutual fund company also owned by Continental. This would benefit the company at the expense of the shareholders.

Until a few days ago, we thought Sparkman had granted this legislative favor because of his long friendship for Horne. But now we have learned that Continental executives funneled money into Sparkman's 1972 campaign.

In December 1971, C. Robert Strader, vice president of Continental's brokerage firm, wrote his top aides in confidence: "In regard to the Senator Sparkman Campaign, would you be good enough to forward your check, made payable to the Sparkman Campaign Fund, to Mr. Reasoner immediately . . . William Reasoner is president of the brokerage subsidiary."

Again in February 1972, Strader made another pitch to his harassed executives: "Everyone in the Home Office is being asked to contribute the cost of one or more $100 fundraising tickets based on their salary level . . . Forward your check to me made payable to the Senator John Sparkman Campaign."

Even in this day of Watergate, such blunt corporate pressure is uncommon. We have traced the flow of money from Continental executives into account number 12-860-81-411 at Washington's American Security and Trust bank.

The trail ends there. We were unable to get the bank or Sparkman's office or Continental to discuss the secret fund with us. Insiders have assured us, however, that the contributions were "substantial."

Whatever the total, it was a good investment. Sparkman's bill will benefit Continental many times above the amount its executives raised.

Your money's worth

Moving an agony for millions

(EDITOR'S NOTE: First in a five-part series designed to help you avoid moving agonies, cut moving costs, prevent and insure losses and other helpful hints.

By SYLVIA PORTER

Of all the millions of you who will move in 1973, a towering 60 per cent will move between this month and Sept. 20. This means about 23 million men, women and children are bunched their moves into these three months — and of these, 1,200,000 families will be moving interstate.

Countless millions of you will lost and waste countless millions of dollars. Enormous numbers of you will find moving among the biggest and costliest agonies of your lives. Almost always, moving expenses turn out to be greater than expected; often, goods are delivered late and, when they are delivered, are damaged; frequently, important items are missing altogether. There's only a 50-50 chance you'll be satisfied with this moving experience.

To dramatize the impact even more, while the proportion of families moving in 1973 is one out of five, the proportion of those in the 22-24 age bracket who move is nearly 50 per cent. If you are newly married, your mobility rate for '73 is estimated at a fantastic 84 per cent and, if you are an executive in your '30s, the chances are 97 out of 100 that you'll move before this year ends.

We are moving from city to suburb to exurb.

We are congregating as never before in the nation's congested population belts along the East and West coasts.

We are moving from the colder to the warmer states.

We are moving from East to West.

And millions of us are moving overseas — at least temporarily — to work for the government or for the greatly expanding number of companies and industries doing business all over the world.

You'll not be an untypical American if you live in a dozen or more houses and apartments over the course of your lifetime.

In fact, a not untypical housing "life cycle" for an American today would be (check yourself against this):

Living the first 14-18 years at home, with the family;

Spending the following four-eight years in a boarding school and/or college dormitory;

Moving to a small apartment after graduation;

Moving to a larger apartment after marriage;

Renting or buying a house after the first child or two;

Trading up to a bigger house after the second or third child is born or after the children begin to grow up;

Upgrading still further as family income approaches a peak when the breadwinner is in his 50s;

Retreating to a smaller house or apartment after the children have left the nest and the breadwinner retires.

The moving industry is still so loaded with traps for the unwary consumer and so besmirched by its unscrupulous fringe operators that the Better Business Bureau of Metropolitan New York called a news conference only a few days ago to warn consumers in the New York area to beware "of doing business with local unlicensed movers" and to criticize the Department of Transportation as "being ineffective in protecting consumers against these movers."

A first way to protect yourself against moving's agonies is not to move in these summer months at all. To cope with the rush in this period, the moving industry must operate on a 24-hour basis, and in this period it charges maximum prices. At the same time, its service may be at its worst.

But let's assume you can't switch and you must move in the next several weeks. Then how you, the individual or family being transported, handle this situation can spell the difference between a nightmare and a smooth, businesslike transaction.

Thus, this week's columns will be devoted to guiding you to the basic rules for choosing a reliable mover, cutting costs, preventing and insuring losses, etc.

(Next: How to choose a mover.)

Blue Law battle

By JOHN L. MOORE
Otto News Service
Harrisburg Bureau

HARRISBURG — The legislature has dumped Pennsylvania's adultery and fornication laws, but will it follow suit with the commonwealth's ancient Blue Laws?

Fornication and adultery stopped being crimes for the first time in centuries June 6 when the new Pennsylvania Crimes Code took effect, but the code continues to make most Sunday trading illegal.

And while there are still winds of discontent stirring — particularly in border areas where Pennsylvania consumers are only a short drive away from stores in more liberal states, the Blue Laws still outlaw selling or even offering to sell:

"Clothing and wearing apparel, clothing accessories, furniture, housewares, home, business or office furnishing, household, business or office appliances, hardware, tools, paints, building and lumber supply materials, jewelry, silverware, watches, clocks, luggage, musical instruments and recording or toys."

None of these can be legally sold on Sundays. Moreover, the law prohibits stores employing more than nine employees from selling "fresh meats, produce and groceries on Sunday."

Observers here say that assaults on the Blue Laws perennial occurrences, and that past attackers have had little luck in battling an entrenched Pennsylvania tradition.

This year, there again are signs of renewed attempts to topple the laws.

And at least two legislators are talking about new onslaughts.

Rep. Reid L. Bennett, D-Mercer, wants the House Business and Commerce Committee to hold state-wide hearings on the impact the Blue Laws on the state's economy. Bennett, the committee's minority chairman, isn't ready to say the Blue Laws should be repealed, but he does want the hearings and suggest they be followed with some type of legislative action "based on what we find out" at the hearings.

Philadelphia Sen. Robert A. Rovner has introduced two bills dealing with the Blue Laws, but both are bottled up in committee. One bill calls for the outright repeal of the Sunday trading laws and is like a similar measure tied up in a House committee. Rovner's other bill would let municipalities decide on referendum if their communities should be open or closed on Sundays.

Rovner pledges a "big push" to get his bills out of committee this fall.

"Blue Laws are from the 1700s," says Rovner who calls them "archaic." And they don't keep people from shopping on Sunday, especially in border areas, he argues.

Bennett says "Grassroots" opinion is needed on the subject and argues the best way to sample this opinion is to go to the people. "I think we ought to go over to New Jersey and see the impact it's having on Pennsylvanians," he says.

WINDJAMMER CRUISE IN THE BAHAMAS

Picture yourself aboard the beautiful 84-ft. windjammer, "Gulliver," as she romps before the Trade Winds under a cloud of snowy canvas — in the blue of the open Caribbean — or scudding majestically between green islands. Old salt or newcomer — this is sailing at its glorious best! Enjoy yourself! Enjoy the sun, the salt air, the cool evening breezes, and the good companionship. Help us set sail if you like, or try a trick at the wheel — even if you have never sailed before!

The "Gulliver" will anchor early in the afternoon to give you plenty of time to swim, skin and SCUBA dive, water ski and beach comb and explore ashore. Each day's destination is lovelier than the last. The Windswept beaches, towering palms, and coral reefs shimmering in water as clear as air, are a photographer's delight.

When the sun sets over the yardarm, it's time for all hands to head for the main salon. What a surprise! If you were expecting a straight fish diet — you were wrong! The only fish served here is the fish you catch (prepared by the ship's cook). Steaks, roasts, spaghetti, chops, etc. — all served family style, will remind you of the last time you had dinner in a fine New York restaurant (except that you are wearing a tee-shirt and cut-off shorts). In the evening there may be a native band tuning up ashore, group singing on the afterdeck, or a beach party — all under the myriad stars on a tropical night.

Tomorrow will be another day — a day of adventure at a leisurely pace.

Teenagers and adults week of July 29th. For information, contact Mr. John Jacobi, Adventure Tours, P.O. Box 631, Stroudsburg. Phone 421-6781 evenings, or Wyckoffs Travel Bureau.

Slim gourmet

By BARBARA GIBBONS

Strawberries, raspberries, blueberries, peaches, pineapple... with a sunny summer harvest ahead of us, it's time to think of the most fruit-happy cake there is: sponge cake!

If sponge cake doesn't turn you on, you're probably thinking of those sticky, soggy packaged powder puffs they sell at the bread counter. Homemade sponge cake is something else — deliciously flavored, light and airy in the middle and golden on the outside.

Sponge cake and fruit are a natural, because, as the name implies, sponge cake is thirsty for the tangy juices of whatever fruit you choose to use.

A slice of sponge cake piled high with strawberries and crowned with just the scantiest squiggle of whipped topping looks and tastes like a million calories. But our sponge cake is a skimpy 65 calories a slice — barely a fraction of what you'd "pay" for layer cake or apple pie! That's because sponge cake is one of the lowest-calorie cakes there is — no fat, a minimum of sugar and flour, and lots of protein-rich egg yolks and egg whites to give texture and height.

And best of all, our sponge cake is easy... simpler still if you have both a blender and a mixer.

Here are a few tips: the eggs should be at room temperature. Separate the egg yolks into the blender and the whites into your mixing bowl. (For an even higher cake at very few calories more, add one or two additional egg whites, a minimum of five). You may bake this cake in 2 eight-inch layer pans.

Spread the layers with crushed sliced strawberries for a two-layer company shortcake. Or, put one layer in your cake box and the other in your freezer. For a dieter's portion, slice one layer into eight wedges. Top with lots of fruit, unsugared, or sweetened with sugar substitute. If you're fresh out of fresh fruit, try it with canned peaches packed in juice.

Powdered-Sugar Sponge Cake

3 egg yolks
1 cup confectioner's sugar
1/4 cup boiling water
1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla
1/4 teaspoon orange rind
1 cup cake flour
1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
3 or more egg whites
1/4 teaspoon salt

In blender or mixer, beat the egg yolks until lemon-colored. Add the sugar and beat smooth. Add the water, vanilla and orange rind and beat. Stir the flour and baking powder together. Uncover the blender and beat in the flour, a little at a time, until smooth.

In mixing bowl: beat the egg whites and salt until stiff peaks form.

Fold the batter into the egg whites, gently but thoroughly, using a rubber scraper, or mixer at lowest speed.

Spoon into 2 eight-inch cake pans and bake in a preheated 325-degree oven for 25 minutes, until done. Cool thoroughly before removing from pans. When cool, sprinkle with one tablespoon powdered sugar, if desired.

Makes 16 slices, 65 calories each.

New York's Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — Sappy Booker Xavier Hollander's prosthetic career is watched so closely by the fuzz, she now thinks leading a band might pay off. Randy Agnew's contemplating changing his name to Dimitri. Don't play gin rummy with Nixon's new staff chief Gen. Haig: he's a card sharpie. Dyan Cannon's seen her films and now wants to be a singer. Recorded an album including three tunes she wrote all by her self. S. F. Mayor Joseph Alioto's sense of silliness triumphs over his multi-adversities: asked at Stanford U. if he'll run for Gov., Alioto said he had the same reply he'd given a few days before: "What the hell do you think I'm doing at a Rotary luncheon in Beverly Hills on a Wednesday afternoon?"

Tennis hustler Bobby Riggs called top gambler-owner Bob Barnett at London's Casanova

Club to get a odds on him in the "old men's division" for a forthcoming Wimbledon do. The sly antique entered with (to get the odds upped) an unknown pro named Homer Richards as partner. Barnett laid Bobby 6 to 1 for a nice chunk. The big shock in Bdw's fine hit "The Changing Room" is the male nudity of the football locker room, but couturier Mr. John signed a deal to market the sweaters its stage football players affect. Remember the old firms whose period decor included totally private booths in restaurants? The Nirvana, Bangladesh eaterie penthousing atop Central Park South, has a row of the booths-for-two, closed doors and all.

At N. Y. Police H. Q., there's a TV screen which hauls in action from spang in front of City Hall where a camera is mounted permanently on a nearby Broadway building. To spot anyone starting trouble. Women's Wear stylish reporter Rosemary Kent and architect Henry Meltzer will wed this summer. Tony-winner (for supporting actress) Patricia Elliott of "A Little Night Music" had her Tony copied into miniaturized earrings. Ear, ear!

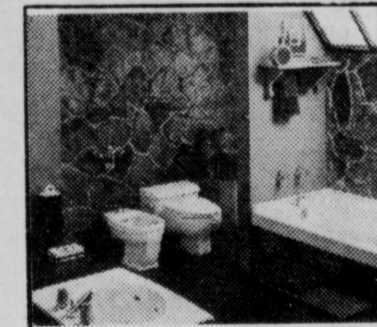

Obie (off-Bdwy) winner Mari Gorman (for The Hot L Baltimore) is a double B-gal — a Buddhist and a baseball nut. N. Y. Mets of course. David Cassidy didn't like a London review

(by Observer's Tony Palmer) so he filed a libel suit. Insecurity's setting in: White House dinners and Sunday pray-ins aren't being cast there — minority leaders Sen. Hugh Scott and Cong. Gerald Ford now do the recommending. The meek won't inherit the earth — lawyers and auditors will: new pres. of the N. Y. Academy of TV Arts and Sciences is David Braun — a lawyer; actors aren't even among the new top officers elected: documentary producer Jules Power's the first-veep, audio-visual specialist John Charles Ford is the new secretary — and he's from a stock-brokerage (Merrill-Lynch).

The rainbow Room atop Radio City (most beautiful restaurant in N. Y.) salutes New Orleans with a Jazz-Food Festival June 19-July 8 with Bourbon St. razzle and Pontchartrain dazzle, Creole cuisine, Wild Bill Davison's joyful Dixieland noise, blues by Ellyna Tatum — and "The Sound of Satchmo": sounds niftily special.

Ingrid Bergman says if she had to start her acting career now, she doesn't think she'd make it — wouldn't take off her clothes onstage or screen: "I would never want my children embarrassed by what I do on screen."

People in Places: the Art Carneys in Louise's E. 58th St. spot entertaining Goldie Hawkins whose sprightly Goldie's was the New Yorkiest spot in town and our after midnight stop for years; Goldie retired into his saloon fortune.

'60 Mama,' spend

It probably comes as a surprise to no one, but girls start early to outspend boys. A lead which they manage to maintain until death, or an ugly credit manager... whichever comes first.

This difference among men and women has probably accounted for more domestic scenes than any other phase of marriage. Actually, spending is a genetic trait.

In every female is an exocrine gland called "Spend, Baby, Spend." It is located in the palm of the hand which is why girl babies are born with the left hand cramped in a credit card position. (Males are born with closed fists.)

Whenever a woman views signs reading: "SALE. END OF THE MONTH CLEARANCE. GOING OUT OF BUSINESS. LIQUIDATING. ONE-HALF OFF. NO PAYMENTS UNTIL AFTER CHRISTMAS, the other glands swing into action. Saliva begins to form in her mouth, the palms of her hands begin to perspire, tears of excitement form in her eyes, and the pituitary gland says, "Go Mama."

In the male, it is quite a different story. He has a gland which follows a muscle from his right arm down to the base of his billfold pocket. It is called "cheap." When a decision of money is to be made, the muscle stiffens, the right hand becomes numb and he is unable to pull the billfold out of the pocket.

These genetic differences can best be explained by our recent experience in buying a freezer.

We discussed at great length at home how a freezer would save us money. We decided between us that the budget could stand the cost of the freezer. We saw an ad in the paper listing exactly the one we wanted at exactly the price we could pay. We took the checkbook from the desk and announced to the children, "we are going to buy a freezer tonight."

At the store, the salesman approached my husband and asked, "May I help you?"

"We're just looking," said

my husband and wandered into air conditioners.

I grabbed his arm, "Whatya mean we're just looking! We're going to buy a freezer!"

"Tonight?" he asked in surprise.

"We decided it was a necessity."

"You said that when you got the dog's teeth capped."

The salesman returned. My reflexes instinctively opened my handbag, thrust it at the salesman and said, "Take what you need."

My husband shook his head muttering, "I wonder if there's a hormone you can take for poverty."

SPECIALIZED CARE
... NECK INJURIES
By Dr. Thomas F. Snyder

Only someone who has had a severe neck injury truly knows the pain or disability involved. Only someone with a relieved joint pain knows how difficult it is to find a doctor who understands how to treat these conditions effectively. Powerful drugs that do not cure, yet have serious side effects, are not the ideal answer. In most cases, surgery should be a last resort.

Neck injuries may cause symptoms not only in the neck but also in the head, shoulders, arms, hands, upper back and chest. "Whiplash" injuries may cause pain long after the accident has been forgotten. Many severe headaches may be traced to the neck. Chiropractic Orthopedists have specialized training in corrective care of these cases.

(One of a series of articles published in the public interest to explain and illustrate the scientific practice of Chiropractic, written by Dr. Thomas F. Snyder, Chiropractic Orthopedist, Brodheadsville, Pa. Phone 992-4787).

They won an award for the oldest piece of fire equipment

— a 1837 pumper. Acme's Ladies Auxiliary won second place for the best appearing auxiliary, and the company itself took third place for the best marching group under 40 men.

Other Monroe County winners included the Pocono

Mountain Fire Co. which won second place for best pumper, and the Pocono Mountain High School which took second in the Junior Band Division. They represented the Acme Hose Co.

In the Slate Belt, the East Bangor Fire Co. won first honors for a marching company under 40 men. In the same category, the Lookout Fire Co. of Pen Argyl took fourth place.

The Vigilance Hose Co. of Nazareth hosted this year's 76th annual association's convention and parade. Overall, 65 fire companies and 23 bands were represented.

qua Fire Co. in Schuylkill County and the Leighton Fire Co. in Carbon County both won two awards.

Tamaqua won for the best non-member appearing fire company and second for apparatus.

Leighton was cited for the best appearing unit over 40 men and for its marching band which took second in the Men's Senior Division.

At Friday's convention, W.H. Fred Blank of Leighton was elected president of the association, succeeding Ernest S. Fehnel of Nazareth. Leighton will host the parade next year.

Family left homeless when flames consume trailer

STROUDSBURG — A family of five was left homeless after a fire gutted their mobile home in Stroud Township early Saturday morning.

The Larry Van Why family of 620 Wicaz Ave., Stroud Township, managed to escape in their bedclothes from smoke-filled trailer home just seconds before it erupted in flames.

Stroud Township Fire Chief Ray Silver said 60 men and eight trucks answered the alarm at 2:49 a.m., discovering over half the trailer in flames when they arrived.

Van Why, his wife, Cheryl, and two of their three children, Kevin, 9, and Ronna, 5, were asleep in the mobile home, when they were awakened by a strong odor of smoke.

The third Van Why child, Charles, 11, was spending the night with his grandmother in East Stroudsburg.

Discovering the entire trailer filled with smoke, Van Why led his family to safety out the back door of the trailer. Moments later, the front section of the mobile home, including the living room and kitchen area, exploded in flames.

The family fled next door to the home of Max Blum, who called the fire department. The family took nothing with them and lost everything they owned.

Silver said firemen remained on the scene about two hours and pumped 5,000 gallons of water onto the blaze. He termed the trailer a "complete, absolute loss" and said the cause of the blaze has not yet been determined.

The chief added that firemen removed two propane gas tanks from the rear of the burning trailer. He said the trailer was not covered by insurance, nor were any of the family's possessions.

The family has moved temporarily to the home of a friend, Mrs. Grace Kresge of Stroudsburg.

Silver said the fire department and the Salvation Army are seeking monetary donations or clothing for the Van Whys, who lost everything from, all of their bedding and dishes to Mrs. Van Why's eye glasses in the blaze.

Silver said donations of these materials may be made in the Van Why's name to the fire department or the Salvation Army.

Clothing sizes for the family are as follows: Ronna — size six dress and 10½ small children's shoes; Kevin and Charles — size 10-11 slim pants, medium boys' shirts and size 2-2½ shoes; Mrs. Van Why — size seven dress and shoes; Mr. Van Why: size 32, 30 pants, medium shirt, size 6½ shoes and size 34 jacket.

Pair hit gas station

Manhunt nets burglary suspects

BRODHEADSVILLE — Two persons who allegedly robbed a Fern Ridge gas station early Saturday were apprehended by state police Saturday afternoon in a wooded area near here following an extensive manhunt.

State police at Fern Ridge arrested Jack A. Earling, Jr., 21, Morrisville, and a 17-year-old juvenile from Trenton, N.J., who reportedly robbed $125 from Delese's Exxon Station at the intersection of Rts. 80 and 115.

Trooper James Harris, investigating officer, said the pair stopped at the station at 4:40 a.m. for gas. They were using the vending machines inside when the juvenile allegedly took money from the cash register.

The attendant, Nicholas Evancho, said he was busy with chores when the robbery took place. He said the pair fled in a Volkswagen south on Rte. 115.

Police said the car had been stolen late Friday night in New Jersey.

A state trooper from Fern Ridge spotted the car and gave chase.

Harris said the suspects abandoned the car in Brodheadsville and escaped on foot through the woods in Chestnut Hill Township.

A search by police was organized with an estimated 30 state troopers from Fern Ridge, Stroudsburg, Leighton, Hazleton, and Bloomsburg combing the area on foot.

Two state police helicopters from Hazleton and Reading were also used.

State police were assisted by Monroe County Sheriff Forrest Sebring and three of his deputies, Tunkhannock Township Police Chief Thomas Coleman and Kitter Township Police Chief Morgan Ginder.

Harris said horses were obtained from Edward Johnson, who runs a stable near Mt. Airy Lodge, and Gordon Latzko of McIlhenny.

Police also used the services of a bloodhound provided by Thomas McGinn of Worldwide Search and Rescue 9 of Philadelphia.

Both suspects were found around 1:30 p.m. about a half-mile from Mario's Chestnut Hill Restaurant near Brodheadsville.

One of the suspects was found by Latzko, who was commended by the state police for his fine efforts. The other suspect was apprehended by two sheriff deputies and a state trooper. Neither suspect offered any resistance.

Police said Earling was arraigned before District Magistrate Glenn Borger and lodged in the Monroe County Jail in lieu of bail. A hearing date hasn't been scheduled.

The juvenile was also confined to the jail awaiting action today by juvenile authorities.

Four escape serious injury in two weekend accidents

MOUNT POCONO — Four persons were injured, though none seriously in two separate auto accidents Saturday and Sunday afternoon, state police reported.

Eli L. Medunic, 43, King of Prussia, and his wife, Dolores, 40, were injured in a one-car mishap on Rte. 196, a mile north of Mount Pocono, state police at Fern Ridge reported.

They said Medunic was driving south at 5:30 p.m. Sunday when he swerved to his right to avoid hitting a car that was turning in front of him.

Police said Medunic struck a telephone pole which demolished his car.

The couple were taken to the General Hospital of Monroe County by the Pocono Central Ambulance.

Mrs. Medunic was in satisfactory condition while her husband was treated and released.

Police said traffic on Rte. 196 was reduced to one lane for more than an hour.

State police at Milford reported a three-vehicle accident on Rte. 209, five miles north of Bushkill, at 2 p.m. Saturday which injured two persons.

A spokesman for the General Hospital of Monroe County said Mrs. Marcella A.

Schrader, 43, Sperry, Iowa, was in satisfactory condition Sunday night with spinal and neck injuries. Her husband, Clifford, 43, was treated and released.

Both of the injured were taken to the hospital by the Bushkill Fire Department Ambulance.

Police said Thomas Dambinsky, 23, Toledo, Ohio, was driving south on Rte. 209 when he pulled to the shoulder off the road to pick up a hitchhiker.

A car traveling behind driven by Dorothy Fyffe, 18, Altamont R. D. 1, N. Y., attempted to stop and skidded into the car and into the north bound lane hitting a tractor-trailer operated by Schrader which overturned.

Police said the rig was carrying a shipment of meat. Damages to the cargo and three vehicles were estimated at $15,525.

Barrett man arrested for threatening police

STROUDSBURG — A Mountainhome man was arrested and charged with terroristic threat after an altercation with Barrett Township police at midnight Saturday.

Keith R. Gerhard, 26, of Mountainhome, was arrested at his home after allegedly threatening policemen with a .22 calibre handgun, according to Barrett Township Police Chief Robert LaBar.

LaBar said patrolmen observed Gerhard driving home late Saturday night and noted a violation of state motor vehicle codes. They followed him to his home and notified him of the violation.

Gerhard reportedly began to argue loudly with the officers and ordered them to get off his property. When they refused, he allegedly went into his house and returned with handgun, with which he threatened them.

Gerhard was then arrested and arraigned before District Magistrate Earl Ammerman in Stroudsburg. He was committed to the Monroe County Jail in lieu of $5,000 bail.

A hearing has been scheduled before Ammerman at 10:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Write to know

The people in The Pocono Record's circulation area have a "Write to Know" — and The Record will try to provide the answers in the "Write to Know" column. The column is designed to answer any questions or solve any problems — consumer, government or anything else. Send questions to "Write to Know," The Pocono Record, 511 Lenox St., Stroudsburg, Pa. 18360. Questions must be in writing and signed in full. No telephone calls, please.

Q. What can you tell me about the American Holiday Association? Why won't they answer my mail?

D.D., Stroudsburg R.D. 4

A. Permit an editorial judgment first. Your handwriting stinks. Try typing or printing the next time. Here's the report:

The Los Angeles firm has conducted puzzle contests since 1965, offering cash prizes to winners. It sponsors monthly contests with a different name for each. The firm's advertising literature states in part:

"No less than five days will be allowed for solving each tie-breaker puzzle. No more than three of these free tie-breaker puzzles should be necessary and no more than four will be required under any circumstances."

Complaints to the Better Business Bureau question 'Why haven't I won?' or 'Why haven't I heard whether I won?' In each case, the company informed the person of his score only and not his standing. On Aug. 14, the company agreed to a provisional Federal Trade Commission consent order, stipulating certain material facts about the tie-breaking contests be made known.

Q. Locally, the statement "going up Salt Creek" was used following an election years ago. What did it mean?

F.W.H., East Stroudsburg

A. It meant a politician would be put in brine for four years — he had lost. There were Salt River parades, in fact, we've been told, where the losers were basted and the winners promenaded in full glory. Guess you had to be there.

Q. I've collected quite a few newspapers I'd like to recycle. Where can they be dropped off?

A. For the umpteenth time: newspapers can be deposited in the Stroudsburg borough shed on N. Fourth Street or the East Stroudsburg shed on Day Street. Save a tree.

Q. Answering an ad for Mella Tailors, I purchased a sport coat for $55 in October. It arrived from Hong Kong seven weeks later — neither the size, color or fabric desired. I've written and phoned the Bradford addressed company, but have neither a refund or the right jacket. Can you help?

D.D.D., Mount Pocono

A. There's a thread of hope. Although Bradford doesn't have a Better Business Bureau to go rapping on doors, the Chamber of Commerce there says it will help if asked. It's located at 15 Main St., Bradford 16701. Yours isn't the only complaint we've received — others should take the same advice.

Q. I purchased a pool from Prestige Pools in Allentown in September. To make a long story short, I'm still missing a heater, through-the-wall skimmer and aluminum ladder. And I keep getting billed for these items. If you can solve this, you'll be the first one to be invited for a dip.

B.W., Stroudsburg R.D. 5

A. We're bringing an inflatable giraffe with us. Problem has been solved, according to store manager. Men were sent up some time ago to install these items. No one was home. They called first this time. Out swimming in another pool?

Q. There's an ordinance against trailers in the borough, right? What types are prohibited? How is it enforced?

R.C., Stroudsburg

A. House trailers are outlawed. To Stanley Melvin's knowledge, there are no mobile home parks in Stroudsburg. The joint codes enforcement officer points out mobile home parks could be allowed in the borough — in one specific zone and if the park was at least 10 acres in size, which makes it kind of rough. The office is responsible for enforcing the ordinance. Phone 421-7990.

Public colleges ordered to end racial segregation

WASHINGTON — East Stroudsburg State College is formulating plans to comply with a recent U. S. Court of Appeals ruling giving public colleges in 10 states another 10 months to end racial segregation.

ESSC and the 13 other state colleges in Pennsylvania are working with university systems in other states to reach federal race quotas before the government must start action to cut off aid to them.

The Health, Education and Welfare Department (HEW) had been under orders to begin fund cutoff proceedings by Saturday against college and university systems in Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania and Virginia.

The appeals court has also upheld as "unassailable" an earlier order by U. S. District Judge John S. Pratt that requires HEW to start action to cut off money going to elementary and secondary schools in some of the same states and seven others.

The Pennsylvania Department of Education had previously told HEW that total black enrollment at Pennsylvania's 14 state colleges will increase 11 per cent by 1975.

East Stroudsburg State College's goal is 12 per cent.

L. Ray Gillian, ESSC director of minority affairs, has gone on record that the college already had plans for reaching a 10 per cent goal and said he felt the school could reach the 12 per cent goal with little trouble.

"Just under four per cent of our enrollment is minority students at the present time," said Gillian. "We anticipate bringing in an additional 75 minority freshmen next fall and in each succeeding year to reach our goal."

Gillian said he foresees no problem in reaching the 12 per cent goal. "We have already set up the mechanization to reach it and we are recruiting all over the state," he said.

Pratt's Feb. 16 ruling was interpreted as a major blow to the administration's policy of pushing harder for voluntary compliance with the 1964 Civil Rights Act, which forbade the payment of federal aid to schools and other public institutions which practices racial and other discrimination.

Pratt had given HEW 60 to 120 days to begin the cutoff procedures, which involves a long series of hearings and possible appeals.

The appeals court action upholds Pratt's order for 74 elementary and secondary systems found to have renege on previously approved desegregation plans.

Majors to bid farewell

Salvation post — 'Worthy' citadel

EAST STROUDSBURG — The Poconos aren't the easiest place in America to save — but Maj. Rex Worthy and his wife, Maj. Kay Worthy, commanders of the East Stroudsburg Salvation Army Corps, have aided a sizeable part during the past nine years.

The Worthys, in joint command of the post since 1964, will leave for a new assignment in Williamsport June 27.

Since their assumption of the post, the Worthys have built a new citadel which caters to the often transient population of a resort area.

Along with the new building, the Worthys have seen an increase of activities and membership in the East Stroudsburg corps.

The new citadel, built in 1971, houses a family lodge for emergency situations. Because of the shortage of housing and the number of fires, the Worthys say, the lodge is used extremely often.

"This is an unusual feature of our corps," said Maj. Rex Worthy. "Since I-80 has opened, use of our temporary shelter has increased."

According to the Worthys, peak months for use of emergency facilities are April,

May and June — when persons are coming to the area to find summer work.

Activities at the new youth center, the Worthys say, now number 32 weekly events. Youngsters of all ages can use gym facilities, participate in group activities and religious events.

The difference in Salvation Army youth functions, explained Worthy, is "the religious motivation behind them."

Most of the corps' activities are aimed at young people, Worthy said, because "if you're going to reach a person, you have to reach him young."

The Worthys would like to see the center expand "the way it should" but are hampered by lack of staff.

Not enough workers, in fact, is the largest problem now faced by the corps.

Although the corps' volunteer squad does a mammoth job, paid staff is insufficient.

The Worthys were working on solving this problem — as they solved the largest one they faced when they arrived in East Stroudsburg, lack of a decent facility — when they were notified of their transfer.

In effect, they were given two weeks notice last week of their new assignment. And, Mrs. Worthy said, "We're delighted it's a place like Williamsport."

Day in court coming

Sing along with squatters

SHAWNEE-ON-DELAWARE — To the tune of a freshly-written "Squatter Hymn," several dozen Tocks Island squatter families will set out Tuesday night to hitchhike or drive to Wilkes-Barre for their day in court.

The climax to seven months of legal wrangling over a U.S. Justice Department suit against the squatters for occupying federally-owned land along the Delaware River is expected to begin at 2 p.m. in the chambers of the U.S. District Court in Wilkes-Barre when the squatters present their answer to the suit.

In a three-page statement released Sunday night, the Squatter Parents Committee, legal arm for the defendants named in the suit, complained about the handling of the case by District Judge Michael H. Sheridan.

The statement noted that although 51 squatters had signed the legal brief demanding more clarification of the federal charges — thrown out by Sheridan, June 5 — as of Sunday night, only 10 squatters had received notice of Wednesday's hearing.

The squatters expressed fears the hearing will be a "star-chamber" court stacked against them, alleging past legal proceedings initiated by the government have been of such nature.

The Justice Department eviction suit was filed against the squatters last November. A ruling by Sheridan in favor of the government after Wednesday's hearing could mean the squatters would have to vacate the Tocks Island area they have occupied for over three years.

The squatters are optimistic, however, and say they will be justified in the end — if a "fair" trial is conducted. They say that after Wednesday, the government too will be singing the squatter song.

"We'll babble the history, we'll babble the song;
The squatter is here,
Hoorah! Hoorah!
The squatter lives on . . ."

Miller shoots record 63 for U.S. Open crown

OAKMONT, Pa. (UPI) — Johnny Miller, who says he used to "choke" when he thought about winning, won the U.S. Open golf championship Sunday with one of the most incredible performances in history.

Six strokes behind at the start of the final day's play, Miller blazed his way around the monstrous Oakmont Country Club course in eight-under-par 63, shattering two records along the way and winning the most prestigious title in golf by one stroke.

To do it, the 26-year-old Californian had to pass Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus, Gary Player and Lee Trevino, and he did it in almost unbelievable fashion.

Making nine birdies and only a single bogey, Miller wiped out both the all-time Open and Oakmont 18-hole records and his five-under-par 279 total for 72 holes was four strokes better than anyone ever had done here.

That can hardly be called choking, but Miller thought he should have done better.

He birdied the first four holes and then slowed down. He missed a birdie putt on No. 7, and made his only bogey at No. 8, a 244-yard, par-3 where he hit the green and three-putted.

"I honestly can say I gagged on those putts on seven and eight," Miller said.

If he gagged, then what can you say about Palmer, the 43-year-old hero of the western Pennsylvania gallery who was one of the four co-leaders starting the final round and actually had the lead to himself for a while.

Suffering another heartbreaking finish in his bid for a second Open title, Palmer made the turn four-under-par for the tournament and then bogeyed the 12th, 13th and 14th holes in succession.

While Palmer faltered, Miller remained brilliant.

"Telling myself to keep cool," as he explained it, Miller birdied four holes in a five-hole stretch of the back nine and saw three other birdie putts either miss by a couple of inches or hit the cup and lip out.

"All through the round," he said, "I kept telling myself, 'Don't shank it kid,' and I didn't."

"I can only say if I hadn't shot this round they (other players) would be out there choking among themselves. That gave them something to shoot at."

Miller, who had earlier rounds of 71, 69 and 76—"I had no desire this morning after that 76 yesterday," he said—will receive $35,000 for his victory. But the U.S. Open championship is considered worth a lot more to someone with the personality of Miller, a tall, lean blond.

His 63 wiped out the all-time Open record of 64 shared by Lee Mackey (1950), Tommy Jacobs (1964) and Rives McBee (1966) and was two shots better than the Oakmont course record 65 set Friday by littleknown Gene Borek, who finished 18 strokes behind Miller.

John Schlee, the astrology buff who said the stars told him it was "a good week for Gemini," won the $18,000 second prize with a one-under-par 70 and a 280 total.

Tom Weiskopf, who won three tournaments and a record $117,145 on the PGA tour in the last month, was alone in third place with a 70 and 281 total.

There was a three-way tie for fourth among three of the only four players in history to win a million dollars on the PGA tour—Palmer, who had a 72 Sunday, Lee Trevino, who had a 70, and Jack Nicklaus, who shot 68.

Nicklaus came up with too little, too late, when he birdied the 16th and 17th holes, and it must have been a particularly galling defeat for the "Golden Bear" who was shooting for a record-tying fourth Open title and record-breaking 14th major championship overall.

Although he is almost always favored, Nicklaus has won just four of the last 24 major championships since the 1967 British Open.

Lanny Wadkins, whose 65 was impressive on its own, came in at one-under-par 283 with 53-year-old Julius Boros and Jerry Heard, who had 73s Sunday.

Palmer, Heard, Schlee and Boros had been tied for the lead at the start of the day with three-under-par 210 totals, the first time four players ever shared the lead after 54 holes of the Open.

The nine players finishing the tournament under par tied another record, matching the nine sub-par scores in 1946 at Canterbury in Cleveland, where the PGA championship will be decided in August.

Gary Player, the leader at the 18 and 36-hole marks, finished with a 73 following his 77 of Saturday for a 287 total, eight shots behind Miller. Player, who missed four months of action this year because of surgery, plans to return to his home in South Africa Monday for a month of work on his game.

New champion admits he choked

OAKMONT, Pa. (UPI) — Johnny Miller, the lanky, blond new U.S. Open champ from San Francisco, left his heart out on the golf course.

Also some of his soul, and maybe more.

He choked!

This inside information comes to you courtesy of the copyright owner—Johnny Miller himself.

"I told myself keep cool, keep cool, don't let the gallery get you excited," he confessed Sunday following his record-smashing triumph in one of the most hotly-contested Opens ever.

For much of the time, Johnny Miller did keep cool.

You should've seen him after his second shot on the 17th hole when the gallery following him tendered him an ovation that could almost be heard in the next county.

Miller merely raised his right hand an inch or so above his shoulder, and to look at him you'd swear this was Charlton Heston parting the waters.

It wasn't always that way though for the tall, square-jawed, 26-year-old who also had a chance to win the Masters two years ago but let the whole thing fritter through his fingers.

"Today I was so pumped up, I was super nervous," he said after checking in with nine birdies for an eight-under-par 63 that gave him a new all-time Open record for one round as well as a record for the Oakmont course.

"I can honestly say I gagged on those putts on seven and eight," he said, even laughing over the par and bogey he had on those holes because when you win the U.S. Open and the $35,000 first prize that goes with it, you can laugh about little things like maybe choking along the way.

Once he gets started, Miller is one of those compulsive non-stop talkers. He was so excited over what he did Sunday he was practically babbling when he came into the press tent to describe his round.

"There was one thing I kept in my head out there all day," he said, laughing some more. "Don't Shank!" I was thinking that on almost every iron shot. I know that's bad thinking, but I couldn't help it. It was always up there in my mind."

Signs point to Palmer for governor

OAKMONT, Pa. (UPI) — Arnie for governor?

That's what it says on many of the signs that are being carried by members of Arnie's Army and are posted on trees and utility poles around the Oakmont Country Club course.

"Well, I've been asked five or six times in the last five years or so to run for governor," Palmer said before teeing off in the final round of the 73rd U.S. Open.

"But I have never considered it seriously. I would have to stop playing competitively before considering politics. I'm really not inclined toward politics at this time.

"Someday, though. Sure I'm interested in politics. Just like any of you guys here."

Palmer is a registered Republican. His father, Deacon Palmer, 69, who still cuts the fairways at the Latrobe Country Club which Arnie bought two years ago, is a Democrat.

His father had been the greenskeeper at Latrobe for years and now his son owns the course, located about 40 miles east of here, where Arnie began his golfing career as soon as he could swing a set of cut down clubs.

Palmer was asked if his politics leaned toward a slice (to the right) or a hook (to the left).

Arnie laughed and said: "I would rather not go into that."

Many of the writers wanted to discuss his golf game but the conversation kept coming back to politics.

"My father is a Democrat," Palmer said. "We pretty much agree on things although we are registered differently."

Palmer said he played a round of golf with former Pennsylvania Gov. Raymond Shafer, a Republican, about three years ago in Harrisburg, the state capital.

"As we came up on 18, there was a cavalcade of cars near the green," he recalled. "People began jumping out carrying these printed signs (Palmer for Governor). Yeah, I've been asked to run for governor."

Red-hot Scheckter takes victory at Watkins Gen

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (UPI) — Curly-haired Jody Scheckter retained his domination of the Formula 5000 field Sunday with a 4.6-second victory over Brian Redman in the L&M championship series at the Watkins Glen Grand Prix race course.

Flipping his hands to his orange and white crash helmet in a victory salute after taking the checkered flag, Scheckter acknowledged the cheers of the racing crowd as he won his fourth consecutive L&M race and took a commanding lead in the drivers' standings with 95 points.

The 23-year-old South African driver averaged 117.68 miles an hour as he completed a "miracle" victory in a Lola Chevvy he rented after crashing his Winston Trojan in a practice session last Friday. The victory was worth $23,250 to Scheckter and raised his earnings to $87,350 for the year.

The race was virtually a two-car battle after runner-up Peter Gethin of England left the course when the rear suspension broke on his car during the 11th lap.

Redman, of England, the other driver to win a race in this series during 1973, picked up the challenger's role and cut Scheckter's lead from 14 seconds in the 12th lap to 4.691 seconds at the end of the 30-lap,

Miss Bourassa nears title with lead in Montreal golf

MONTREAL (UPI) — Jocelyne Bourassa came one step closer to winning her first professional golf tournament Sunday when she shot a one-under-par 36 on the final nine holes to take a one-stroke lead over Judy Rankin at the end of two rounds of the $50,000 La Canadienne Golf Championship.

Miss Bourassa, who shot a one-over-par 37 on the front nine, came back strong on the final nine holes with eight pars and a birdie to close the day out with an even par 73. Her two-day total after Friday's five-under-par 68 now stands at 141 going into the third and final round.

Miss Rankin came into Sunday's second round with a two-under-par 71 and equalled that performance again to carry a 142 total into Monday's final round.

Jane Blalock and Carol Mann tied for third spot with two round totals of 143, three under par. Miss Blalock tamed the Montreal Municipal Course with a four-under-par 69, while Miss Mann had a one-under-par 72.

A crowd of 12,642 turned out Sunday to watch the second round after rain had washed it out Saturday. Close to 7,000 of those spectators followed Miss Bourassa, who was in a threesome with Miss Mann and Mary Dwyer Horner. Mrs. Horner was tied for second at the end of the first round, but fell to a four-over-par 77 Sunday to give her 147 for the tournament, leaving her six strokes off the pace.

Renee Powell, who also had a piece of second place Friday, slumped to a 78 on the soggy course. Betty Burnfield set a course record with a six-under-par round of 67 Sunday to move back into contention after a 79 in the opening round. It left her in seventh position behind Betsy Rawls and Sandra Haynie who have totals of 144 and 145 respectively.

After opening the second round as she did the first, with a birdie and a bogey, Miss Bourassa ran into some difficulty. She birdied the third but then went on to bogey the par three eighth and the par four sixth, before closing her opening nine at 37.

She missed the green on the eighth and her tee shot landed behind a small tree to the left of the green. From there she played her next shot into the middle of the fairway and then chipped to within five feet of the cup on her next effort. She then putted out to preserve her bogey.

Williams gives Baltimore win

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Earl Williams doubled in the winning run in the bottom of the 16th inning off reliever Don Stanhouse Sunday to give the Baltimore Orioles a 5-4 victory over the Texas Rangers.

Williams ended the four hour marathon between Bobby Grich smacked a leadoff single, stole second base and watched Tommy Davis draw an intentional walk. Williams lined a two-bagger to right-center field to score Grich to give reliever Bob Reynolds, 3-3, the victory.

The game had been tied 4-4 since the eighth inning when the Rangers scored twice to wipe out an Oriole lead.

The Orioles scored in the seventh when Williams, Paul Blair and Brooks Robinson singled, loading the bases. Etchebarren grounded out with Williams scoring.

Dick Billings homered in the Ranger seventh, his first of the season after a double by Toby Harrah and a Rico Carty single in the fourth inning scored the first Texas run.

The Rangers chased McNally with two outs in the eighth when Vic Harris and Harrah singled, and Alex Johnson singled Harris across. Eddie Watt replaced McNally and was greeted by Carty's single, scoring Harrah to tie the score at 4-4.

Ron Spinner, Bill Reese and Tom Morken all homered for the winner in the first game. Reese homered in the second game.

Saylorsburg keeps lead with wins

SAYLORSBURG — Saylorsburg beat West End, 15-2 and 5-1, Sunday to maintain its lead in the Pocono Mountain League.

Ron Spinner, Bill Reese and Tom Morken all homered for the winner in the first game. Reese homered in the second game.

Kunkletown allowed just three hits as it beat Readers, 3-0, in the first game of a doubleheader and came back to take the second game, 4-2.

Allison gains 1st of season

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (UPI) — Bobby Allison won his first NASCAR Grand National stock car race of the season Sunday, averaging 100.215 miles per hour to capture the Tuborg 400 at Riverside International Raceway.

Allison, 35, Hueytown, Ala., drove his 1973 Chevelle to beat out Richard Petty in the 153-lap race over Riverside's 2.62-mile road course.

Petty, of Randleman, N.C., was the only driver on the same lap with the winner at the end of the race witnessed by 43,700 fans.

Both Petty and Cale Yarborough, of Timmons, S.C., in a '73 Chevvy, challenged Allison through the first two thirds of the $90,000 race. Yarborough dropped out with a blown engine while leading on the 114th lap.

Allison's victory was worth $14,000, and his other Father's Day loot included a floating lounge chair for his pool, a gift from four children, who stayed with relatives in Florida during the week.

Allison led 84 of the 153 laps in the race, taking over on the 114th lap.

Both Petty and Yarborough outran him at various stages in the four-hour race and Allison claimed they couldn't run faster for long periods because they were using a special soft tire which wore down quickly.

"I was pretty sure Cale and Richard were using soft tires," Allison said. "They could outrun me for a few laps but that was all. I could stay with them most of the time."

Allison's only serious problem came on the 68th lap when he was momentarily confused by a cloud of dust kicked up by Petty when the latter dropped two wheels off the track in turn eight.

Montanez expodes in Philadelphia win

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Willie Montanez slammed a three-run homer, two doubles and a single as the Philadelphia Phillies dumped the San Francisco Giants 11-7 Sunday.

The Phils jumped on Giants' pitchers for 16 hits, including solo homers by Tommy Hutton and Bob Boone.

Philadelphia appeared to turn the game into a rout until the seventh inning when the Giants' Dave Kingman blasted a bases-loaded homer off winning pitcher Steve Carlton to narrow the Phils' lead to 10-6.

Denny Doyle and Del Unser singled in the Phils' third before Montanez parked a pitch by Giants' starter Tom Bradley, now 5-5, into the right field stands, making the score 4-1. The Phils picked up another run in the fourth to widen their lead to 5-1.

San Francisco scored its second run of the game in the top of the fifth inning when Willie McCovey lined a double off the centerfield wall to score Tito Fuentes.

With Carlton, who stretched his record to 7-7, on third base in the sixth, Montanez, who went 4-for-4, singled off reliever John Morris to drive in another run. Philadelphia added two more runs that inning to take a 10-2 lead.

Carlton was relieved in the seventh by Billy Wilson, who allowed one run the rest of the way for his third save.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Indicated now: Fine opportunities for advancing your status, new means toward the attainment of worthwhile goals. Stess foresightedness and prudence, however.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Fine lunar aspects. Be on the lookout for good leads, projects with substantial background. Finances especially favored.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Aspects stimulate your knack for handling matters that involve many persons. Especially favored: salesmanship, organizational affairs, government work.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — Good influences. Occupational interests, domestic concerns, educational pursuits especially favored. Some changes in the making are for the best.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Now you have the opportunity to spread your wings a bit, to investigate new areas for advancement. But do not drop well-planned activities merely for the sake of change.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn) — Avoid hasty judgments. Look more closely at all situations. There may be values not seen at a cursory glance.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — An immediate follow-up on certain plans and projects recently begun will be important now, since you have the "go" sign in all worthwhile endeavors.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — Don't block opposition that could eventually be converted into support. Work diplomatically to bring it around. Some barriers aren't as impenetrable as they seem.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a fine mind, a lively imagination and a magnetic personality. You also possess the gift of leadership and have a profound influence on all with whom you come in contact. Your versatility is outstanding and many fields are open to you, but you would probably find your greatest happiness in literature or the stage — or possibly a combination of both, such as playwright or dramatic critic.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	1♥	2♦
Pass	Pass	Dble	2♣

Opening lead — six of hearts.

Part-score hands are usually undramatic affairs that pass by unnoticed. But, occasionally something happens that brings them to life and they assume a spectacular character.

Consider this deal from the 1970 world championship match between the United States and China. Neither side could make a game on its cards and the deal would ordinarily have passed into the limbo of forgotten hands. Nothing much happened at the first table, where the bidding went as shown. The Taiwan North-South pair got to two spades and West led a heart, taken by the ace. East played the ace and another trump, declarer going up with the king and so finishing with ten tricks for a score of 170 points.

But at the second table the action was far more volatile and a tremendous swing occurred as a result of this series of bids:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	1NT	2♦
Pass	Pass	Dble	Redble
Pass	Pass	Pass	Pass

The American — South overcalled with two diamonds and, after two passes, East elected to put up a fight for the part-score by making a takeout double.

South redoubled to show an exceptionally good overcall and West, with no convenient bid available, chose to pass. Apparently something went wrong with the Chinese methods when East also passed, leaving South at two diamonds redoubled.

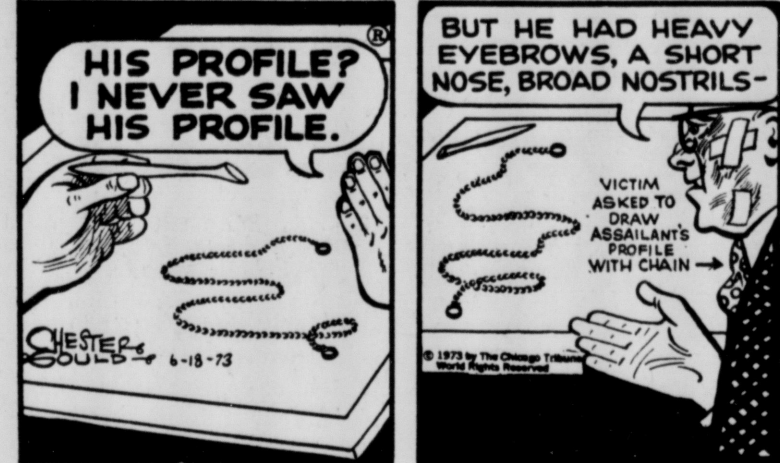

West led the queen of spades and South easily made ten tricks, scoring 160 points for making two diamonds redoubled, 50 for contract 800 for game, this came to a tidy 1,510 points in what was basically a part-score hand!

Ann Landers

Check this list

Dear Ann Landers: Our 9th grade English class was interested in your checklist for a balanced life. That checklist seemed directed toward the businessman or woman. Ours is concerned with the balanced relationship between parents and their children. We hope you will print it.

1. If you haven't shown some real affection for your children today, you've wasted the day.

2. Have you caught yourself lately leaving the task of discipline to your mate? Have you apologized recently for a time when you disciplined your children while reacting to moods, rather than in fairness?

3. When was the last time you spent a totally unproductive evening with your family? Have you taken in a movie, gone on bike rides, flown kites, or just put a puzzle together? If it's been longer than two weeks, prepare for future communication problems.

4. Have you been too busy sitting in front of your TV or working on a part-time job to share yourself with your children?

5. Do you work until all hours, then bring gifts? Remember, your presents don't mean nearly as much as your presence.

6. Have you recently given your children a day of freedom to do as they please?

Remember that they need a chance to clear their heads and pursue personal interests. Privacy is as important to them as it is to you.

7. Do you prejudge your children on the assumption that all children are delinquents? Treat them as honorable, trustworthy individuals and see what a difference it will make. Children tend to become what you expect them to be.

If you give your children love, time, privacy, understanding and discipline, the lines of communication will always be open and you will be spared the anxiety and heartache that we see so much of these days.

Mitchell, Room 205

Dear Mitchell: Thanks for your checklist. It is excellent and I appreciate the contribution.

Dear Ann Landers: I read your column regularly and enjoy it, but obviously divorce is an area in which you do not have as much expertise as in others. Therefore, please allow me to point out a slight error.

Legally there is no such thing as an "ex-in-law." As a reference I offer the sentences on page 5 of the booklet, "Your Federal Income Tax — 1973 Edition."

In the relationship test for members of the family it states: "Once any of the above relationships have been established by marriage, they will not be terminated by divorce."

So — once a mother-in-law, always a mother-in-law. Even though the marriage is dissolved and other marriages take place, the original status remains intact.

Your Friendly Watch Dog In Santa Cruz

Dear Friendly Watch-Dog: Thanks for educating me. All you divorced people out there who are rejoicing at having unloaded the in-laws when you unhitched from your ex — stop celebrating. You've still got 'em, as far as the income tax man is concerned.

Confidential to A Little Disappointed: Cheer up. Recently someone asked a psychiatrist what would happen to the world if everyone could produce beautifully adjusted children, completely free of hang-ups. He replied, "I don't know. Nobody's ever done it."

Fed up with Phil

By Jean Adams

PHIL: (Q.) For most of the school year of 1971-72 Becky and I went out together. In March of 1972 we broke up and she started going out with Phil. She went with him till spring of this year. Now she is going with me again.

She talks about Phil just an awful lot of the time. This makes me mad for two reasons. First, I think he is her first choice. And second, I think if he asked her to she would drop me and start going out with him again.

During that time we were broken up I was really hurt and lonely. Do you think she will leave me again.

Jealous in New Jersey

(A.) Becky is going out with YOU. One of the best possible ways to get her to go out with Phil (or someone else) is to low-rate yourself. That is what you are doing, either openly or in secret, when you are with her.

Stop it.

When she talks about Phil, be calm. Do not snap at her or freeze up or start an argument. When she sees that talking about Phil doesn't get a big reaction out of you she will stop talking about Phil.

AT CHURCH: (Q.) Pam is this girl in my Sunday school. I don't really know her. I've had plenty of chances to talk to her, but just never had the nerve. I know I would go crazy if someone else got to be her boy friend.

How can I let her know I'm interested in her?

Nervous in Texas

(A.) Begin next Sunday morning. Be there a little early so you can spot her as she arrives. Walk toward her as
